

PREVIEW OF

Yin & Yang:
Poetry From Both Sides of my Disposition

A CHARMED LIFE

If I rented a room on the eighty-seventh floor,
wrote a poetic note of departure, and planned to leap
to a glorious, gory death--
I bet I couldn't get the window open.

WASTE ANOTHER NIGHT

I wish to find my own destiny will I waste another night?
time has its size
it's like I'm blind and available

abandoned arms are wide
and the decision is not mine it's like I'm dark in the light hidden within the tangibles will I win when I don't care to?

abandoned arms are wide
and the decision is not mine.
